(b) if so, the total value of Indo-China trade in 1992 as compared to actual trade figures in 2007-08 and target set by 2010;

(c) whether India largely exports raw materials while importing finished goods from China; and

(d) if so, the details thereof?

THE MINISTER OF EXTERNAL AFFAIRS (SHRI PRANAB MUKHERJEE): (a) Prime Minister paid an official visit to the People's Republic of China from 13 to, 15 January 2008. The last visit by an Indian Prime Minister to China was in June 2003. Prime Minister exchanged views on the further development of bilateral relations, including in the area of trade.

(b) to (d) India-China bilateral trade in 1992 was US$ 338 million. In 2007, it reached USS 38.69 billion according to Chinese statistics. The main Indian exports to China were iron ore, raw cotton, machinery, copper, organic chemicals and plastic. Raw materials constituted over 50% of India's exports to China in 2007. The main Chinese exports into India were fertilizers, iron & steel and electrical machinery. During PM's visit, it was decided to increase the bilateral trade target for 2010 from 40 billion US dollars to 60 billion US dollars. PM also conveyed that further efforts should be made to address the trade imbalance and to ensure growth on a sustainable and long-term basis.
